New Screen Magazine

No. 88

For a ten-year-old boy weighing 85 pounds to haul in a fish weighing 45 pounds is indeed an achievement. Yet this was done by a small boy in the Rogue River, Southern Oregon.

Postage stamps are made in Washington. The stamp printing machine performs twenty-one different operations at once. The machine that gums and prints the stamps turns out four thousand of them a minute.

"Frocks and Frills" of the day will interest the women particularly. Dresses embody simplicity and tend to give girlish and slender lines, according to the models displayed.

Our most faithful friends are the cat and dog, and in this issue of the magazine some particularly costly specimens are shown.

There is some interesting "freak photography" and a collection of pointed quips gathered under the heading "With the Wise Birds."
